Night and Then Makes
His Way to Safety.

TIPTONVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 21.—Unharmful, save numerous scratches received in a thirty-hour trip through unfamiliar woods and the fatigue incident to the trip without food and the mental strain, Col. R. Zachary Taylor reached here to-day after a remarkable escape from night riders at Reel Foot Lake, who lynched his partner, Capt. Quentin Rankin, night before last.

Col. Taylor's escape is due to a daring dash for liberty, while the night riders were disputing among themselves the best way to kill him. During the heat of the discussion, at a moment when the guard's attention was diverted, the Colonel broke for freedom. Dashing a few yards to the bank of a shallow inlet of Reel Foot Lake he plunged in.

Under Rain of Shot.
A fusillade of bullets followed the fugitive, whose figure was dimly discernible in the approaching daylight. Wading and swimming the aged attorney pushed forward. Bullets and small shot fell on every side, but none struck him. Near the bank opposite the firing line Col. Taylor threw up his hands and pitched forward heavily over a log and lay inert. Hundreds of shots were fired in the direction of the log, but not one took effect.

Evidently satisfied that their victim had met death and fearing that the repeated sound of shots would arouse too many residents in the neighborhood, the night riders did not attempt to cross the slough to examine the body but left the scene after about 300 shots had been fired.

Col. Taylor, however, lay for hours in the mud and water, fearing that some one had been left to watch. At dawn, cautiously looking up around the shore, he saw that the night riders had not been successful, he arose and plunged into the underbrush to fight his way to a friendly community. Avoiding paths which might lead to some unfriendly clearing, the fleeing man pushed his way slowly through the dense woods. For hours he traveled in this manner, the sun his only guide. When night came the Colonel, still afraid to approach a house, made his couch on a bed of leaves and slept until early morning.

About 8 o'clock this morning Col. Taylor, deciding that it would then be safe for him to make inquiries at a farm house, followed a path which shortly led into a rough road. Within a few minutes the fleeing man came upon the home of Luther Rankin, overseer for the extensive Harris interests, and where the fugitive was given breakfast. Mr. Rankin then rode to the nearest telephone and sent a message to Tiptonville with the news that Taylor was safe. Soon after the Colonel and Mr. Rankin arrived here, being met a few miles from town by a posse of citizens. After being informed at Union City of the safety of Col. Taylor, Gov. Patterson telephoned that he would start for Tiptonville immediately.

Col. Taylor's story.
Col. Taylor today made the following statement of his experiences: "Monday night last Capt. Rankin and I went to Reel Foot Lake in response to a letter from Mr. Carpenter, of Union City, who wanted to lease some timber lands. On our arrival at the lake we went to the log house, or Ward Hotel, and early after supper retired.

Some time during the night we were aroused by some one knocking at our door, and on opening it a mob of masked men were found in the hall.

"We were ordered to dress, and as the leader of the mob said he wanted to talk to us, we put on our clothes and accompanied the men to the back of the lake, some distance from the hotel.

"The leader talked with us, telling us we were associating too much with Judge Harris and were taking entirely too much interest in the lake. He said that the course of Judge Harris and the West Tennessee Land Company in prohibiting free fishing was causing the starvation of women and children and that something had to be done. "I never dreamed that the mob intended us any harm, but just then they threw a rope around Capt. Rankin's neck and swung him to a limb. He protested and said: 'Gentlemen, do not kill me, and the reply of the mob was a volley of fifty shots that riddled his body.'

"The band then began disputing about me, some wanting to kill me and others arguing to hold off for a time. They again some were for shooting me and others for hanging. I watched my chance, brought away from two guards and plunged into the bayou. "I swam to a sunken log, behind which I hid, and then I saw the mob fired several hundred shots into the log. They evidently believed I was dead, for I heard one of them say: 'He's dead, and let him go,' and with that they rode away.

"I remained in the water until the band was out of hearing and went to an island in the lake, where I remained all day Tuesday. At night I started out and walked all night, coming up to a house at 8 o'clock this morning."

The Value Giving Standard by Which Other Stores Are Judged

Every value here, every bit of merchandise, every sale, can be relied upon to be supreme in its class, backed by an experience of fifty years' successful retailing. Grandmothers, mothers and daughters—three generations—can certify to our statement that we sell high grade merchandise for lower prices than any other New York store, and have been doing it for over half a century. Long experience, an enormous volume of sales, with a correspondingly mammoth purchasing power and close connections with the largest mills of the world, are the strong features of our wonderful selling organization which make our low prices possible. We guarantee you pay less for an article here than anywhere else, for, if you should happen to find anything purchased here sold for less in another store, inform us and we will gladly refund your money, thanking you for the information; for no matter how clever our organization, it will happen occasionally that some store may reduce a price without our detecting it. But rest assured that you will at all times secure satisfaction without question at Ehrich Bros.
